Dear Potential Donors,

I am Dr. Archelle Georgiou, a physician who has dedicated my career to empowering people to make informed medical decisions. Over the past three decades, I have served in leadership roles in managed care and medical device companies, and I continue to share my perspective through my book Health Care Choices, my podcast Speak Up For Your Health, and more than 1,000 television health news segments as a journalist. My goal has always been the same: to help patients and families navigate an increasingly complex healthcare system with clarity and confidence.

From these experiences, I have seen both the promise and the shortcomings of our current cancer care landscape. Too often, patients are confined to guideline-based treatments, while new approaches — grounded in sound science but not yet recognized by formal guidelines — remain unavailable to those who could benefit most. This is where SageMedic with its cancer test, and the basket trial you are being asked to support, becomes so important.

The Sage Oncotest empowers patients and their physicians to make both evidence-based and personalized decisions about cancer treatment. This trial will not only give access to patients who could not otherwise afford the test, but it will also generate the real-world data needed to demonstrate its value. Our goal is that this trial paves the way for wider adoption and systemic change.

This initiative aligns deeply with my lifelong mission: ensuring that patients have the tools and knowledge they need to make choices that improve their health and their lives. I strongly endorse this project and urge you to lend your support. By doing so, you are not only giving individual patients the chance for better outcomes, but also advancing a model of cancer care that is smarter, more compassionate, and more sustainable.

Sincerely,

Archelle Georgiou, MD
